

Jewish Genealogical Society of Greater Boston

The Genealogical Riches of Massachusetts' Archives

Featuring a Panel of Local Archivists

Sunday, May 15, 2011, 1:30 pm
Temple Emanuel, Newton Centre

Representatives of the Massachusetts Archives, the New England Historic Genealogical Society, the American Jewish Historical Society, and the City of Boston Archives describe the records they hold, discuss how they can be useful in your genealogical research, and explain how you can access them.

Autumn Haag until recently was a Reference Archivist at the Massachusetts Archives and is now Librarian/Archivist at Roxbury Community College. She has a BA from McGill University and an MIST from the University of Toronto.

Marie Daly is the Library Director of the New England Historic Genealogical Society (NEHGS) and founding President of The Irish Ancestral Research Association (TIARA). She has been involved with genealogical research since 1976 and has helped many visitors to NEHGS find their Jewish ancestors.

Judith Garner is the Managing Archivist at the American Jewish Historical Society (AJHS) and Managing Archivist of the Society's Greater Boston and New England collections housed at NEHGS. She has an AB in History from Wellesley College and an MS in Library and Information Science from Simmons College.

Stephanie Call is Associate Archivist at AJHS and Processing Archivist of the Society's Greater Boston and New England collections. She has a BA in English from Mount Holyoke College and an MS in Library and Information Science from Simmons College.

Zachary Enright is an Archivist with the City of Boston Archives. He assists patrons in their historical, genealogical, and legal research. He has an MS in Library and Information Science from Simmons College.
